Lynne's story

Lynne Booker lost her son Terry, on 14th November 2000. He was stabbed to death in South London aged just 19.

“ Since her son's death, Lynne has tirelessly dedicated herself to helping other parents who have lost children in tragic circumstances. In 2005 she set up the Terry Booker Foundation, a self help group for family members who are grieving over the death of a child or relative. Lynne has vigorously campaigned about the dangers of knives and other violent crime. She also runs a confidential helpline, 24 hours a day, 7 days a week, which she staffs herself. Lynne works for free - she provides this service because she passionately believes in supporting families who have suffered similar bereavement. ”

SLF funded Lynne to help establish the Terry Booker Foundation and contribute to the cost of the helpline.
